Thanks Dan and Wendy for checking on this some more. I too think it would be good to shut down the rumor mill as soon as possible.

At the San Juan's Mining conference last there was a good amount of comparison between the cement creek and the Creede area.....

I talked to Jeannine. She will give Cynthia a call and they can figure out what to do next. Jeannine suspects that they may be getting the Voluntary Cleanup projects on the floodplain mixed up with Superfund.

I understand your anger. I think it would be entirely appropriate for Cynthia or someone to question him on this. I'll check with site assessment and see if they are doing anything in the Creede Area.

This makes me angry! We have been very sensitive to the issue of "mission creep" in Creede and have not let that happen. Can we ask Cynthia to call the editor of the paper and ask him what he's talking about? I am very curious and think we probably need to stop these rumors or misconceptions before they go any further. Let me know what you think? I am also going to share this with Jeannine.

Hi Dan –

I have no idea what the editor is talking about by saying EPA identified two other sites it would like to designate (as NPL) near Creede.

Wendy – do you know what they might mean? (Look at bottom of page 3 furthest right column)

I don't think EPA has made any public comments about any of the other areas near Creede, there has been some internal interest in the Emperious tailings pile and maybe the community members have picked up on that. But all the other work areas have been initiated by the Willow Creek Reclamation committee trying to get funding through Non-point source and Brownfields grant for the Solomon Mine adit and the flood plain restoration.

There are really great pictures of the Skijoring though!

Hi Joy

You may be interested in the editorial portion of this (on page 3 actually). Superfund in Creede is mentioned. Do you know of the 2 other sites in the Creede area that they mention?
